Objectives - After Attending This Program You Should Be Able To

1. Employ an understanding of personalized medicine to individualize the use of available drugs for lung cancers, gastrointestinal cancers, breast cancers, genitourinary cancers, and hematological malignancies. Communicate the efficacy and safety of the drugs discussed in the case studies and other emerging treatments for lung cancers, gastrointestinal cancers, breast cancers, genitourinary cancers, and hematological malignancies.
2. Understand the emerging and standard diagnostic tests used to assist in planning therapy for lung cancers, gastrointestinal cancers, breast cancers, genitourinary cancers, and hematological malignancies. Formulate management strategies, considering the contributory roles of local and systemic therapy.
3. Recall the design of ongoing clinical trials evaluating novel investigational agents and counsel appropriately selected patients about availability and participation.
